KANSAS CITY TAKES ONE. The Men from the West Hit the Ball Hard Yesterday.

The way Manning's men hammered the ball in that awful first inning yesterday led every one of the fifteen hundred people present to believe that there would be no excitement whatever about the game. This idea was dispelled, however, when, a short time after, the leaders opened on Kling and drove him out of the box. Had it not been for Hogan's suicidal attempt to reach second on a single and his still greater blunder in coaching Roat home on the latter's three-base hit when there was nobody out Indianapolis would have tied the game, and might possibly have won out. At any rate, the crowd got a run for its money, and a most exciting one. After nine men had hit Cross safely in the first Damon took his place. When the leaders had nearly closed the big gap Fisher was sent in to hold the Kansas City score steady, it being expected that Indianapolis would pound out the game. Manning saw the little scheme, and, feeling that it would just about work, took Kling out and put in Hastings. This strategic move was too much for the home team, and Kansas City captured the game. Aside from brilliant catches by Canavan and Howas nothing to especially mark the fielding of the home team. About the prettiest play occurred in the eighth, when, with two out, Hines on third and Klusman on first, the latter started to steal second. McFarland threw down and the chase began. Hines waited until the ball had passed between Motz, Newell and Glenalvin once or twice and then made a break for home, where he was nailed by Newell's throw.

For Kansas City Connaughton and Manning each had a phenomenal stop, while Hernon made a great jumping catch of a line fly by Motz in the first inning which spoiled a three-base hit for the long captain. One of the extraordinary features of the game was Hernon's act in the third the game was Hernon's act in the third ine game was Hernon's act in the third inning, when, in the midst of the punishment Kling was receiving, the tricky little left fielder lay down as if sick, and was rubbed for several minutes by his fellow-players. The idea was to give the pitcher a rest and a chance to pull himself together. It failed to work, however, as the hitting continued for some little time afterward.

inning, when, with two out, Canavan got a base on balls and came in on McCarthy's two-bagger to left. Motz made a desperate attempt at a hit, but it was spoiled by Hernon's great catch. For some reason or other every ball Cross pitched in the Kansas City half of the opening inning was hit to an unoccupied spot in the field. Manning, the first man up, drove one to left for two bases. Bergen and Connaughton followed with singles, Hines with a double, Klusman with a single and Nichol with a sacrifice. This resulted in five runs, as Klusman, after reaching second on a wild pitch, scored on Motz's wild throw across to third. With the bases clear Hatfield started things to going again with a three-bagger to right going again with a three-bagger to right center, and Hernen, Kling and Manning followed with singles. Damon then went into the box and Bergen lined one safe to center, being caught a moment later trying to steal second, a play upon which Manning scored his second run. Connaughton hit to ewell and was thrown out at first. All this Newell and was thrown out at hrst. All this heavy stick work was received with bowls of anguish by the bleachers, but they were changed to shouts of rejoicing when, in the third inning, with one out, Newell drove the ball straight over Nichol's head for three bases. It was one of the longest hits ever seen on the grounds, but the ball was hit so hard and traveled so fast that the runner could not make the circuit on it. Bases could not make the circuit on it. Bases balls to Canavan and McCarthy filled the corners, and when Motz hit a vicious grounder that struck Hatfield's foot and bounder that struck Hatfield's foot and bounded out of everybody's reach two runs came in. Roat hit to right for two bases, sending two more men in. Glenalvin drove a line hit near second base, of which Manning made a wonderful stop, throwing his man out. McFarland, however, lifted one to left for two bases, Damon and Hogan following with singles which scored three ollowing with singles, which scored three nore runs, and the fun might have continued indefinitely had not Hogan started for nd when the ball was about to be fielded there. This reckless piece of work retired the side, for he was easily caught on the ne and run down.

In their half of the third Manning's men added two more runs. Fisher was in the box and sent Hatfield to base on balls. The runner stole second and scored on Hernon's single to center. By one of his quick throws McFarland caught Hernon napping at first, and the man was out, but McDermott would not allow it, and during the animated discussion which ensued Hernon slipped down to second. Kling flew to Hogan and Manning was retired at first by Newell, but Bergen hit safe to center scoring Hernon ergen hit safe to center, scoring Hernon. Innaughton was easily disposed of by sher and Motz. Hastings went into the ox for Kansas City in the fourth and the ders hit him safely but twice. Roat center fence for three bases, and was foolishly coached home by Hogan, where he was easily caught. This seemed to take all the stiffening out of the Indianapolis players, and they gave the men from the West very Kansas City Star.

Manager Watkins, of Indianapolis, says that he considers the Western league fully as strong as the old American Association, and believes that it should be given a standing along with the National League.

Newell's failure to hold Manning's fly in the sixth, which Hogan should have been called to take, and which he could easily called to take, and which he could easily have caught, gave the Kansas City captain a life. He sprinted to second after Hogan had caught Bergen's long fly, went to third on Connaughton's fly to Canavan, and scored on Hines's single. The latter came in on Klusman's two-bagger to left. Roat caught Nichol's foul fly. The last Kansas City run was scored in the seventh, when, with one out, Hernon bunted safe, stole second, and was batted home by Hastings's single to right. The latter was forced out by Manning's hit to Newell and Bergen flew to McCarthy. Score: ew to McCarthy. Score:

No pitcher has stood in the box this year with the record that Young, of Cleveland, is making for fielding. He helps constantly to win his own games by getting in front of everything that comes along. The Minneapolis cranks are discouraged, disheartened and disgusted at the miserable showing the Millers have made during the past month and the attendance is falling off in that city at an alarming rate. Umpire McDermott was off in his work yesterday and Indianapolis suffered severely at several stages. It is strange the rooters claim that the team must be given the worst of it at home as well as abroad. Manager Watkins, of Indianapolis, says

In coaching Roat home yesterday after the latter's three-base hit, Hogan worked against all known rules of baseball, there being nobody out at the time. Time and again men are held on third even when they could easily score in order to keep catchers up and thus compel pitchers to slacken their speed somewhat.

Perry Werden and catcher Wilson collided while both were trying to catch a foul fly in Saturday's Minneapolis-Grand Rapids game in the latter city, and they were knocked senseless. A letter received in Toledo Sunday conveyed the information from Carney that he did not think the transfer of the Toledo team to Terre Haute would be a success. In answer to the inquiry if he would be willing to manage the team if it was again brought to this city he signified his willingness and also stated that he would put money in a team that would take up the schedule if the franchise could be secured. Ball players should leave their tempe in the dressing room—that is, not take it on the ground with them. Yesterday pitcher Clarke, of New York, carried his ire with him. He kept it under control till the ninth inning, when it broke loose. "Old Anse" was "making a monkey of himself" on the coach line, and Clarke threw the ball at him. Two "Colts" were on bases and both pranced to the next base. Then an error let in the winning run.

RUNNING RACES.

Close Finish at Brighton Beach-Some Favorites Beaten.

NEW YORK, July 8.-There was on good race at Brighton Beach to-day for the finish in the fourth event was close enough to suit anybody. All of the horses that started were well backed and at the close Wernberg was the favorite. After some delay the flag fell to a good start, and Wernberg at once cut out the running. drove Carrers along at a high rate of speed. In the last few jumps Carrers tired a little and only won by a half length. There was a hard fight for second place There was a hard fight for second place and Wernberg got it by an eyelash from Sir Excess. Daily American was the favorite in the first race, but was utterly unfit to run, and was beaten by Aurelian and Charade, both at long odds. In the second race, Lambent was a strong favorite, and won easily. A lot of maidens competed in the third race and the favorite was Lorrie Kip. Griffin, however, held back too long and was beaten by a neck on the post by Perseus. Prig was a strong favorite in the fifth race. Captain T. ran at the head of the field by two lengths from Prig, with the others strung out. The pace was too hot and Prig quit at the turn into the stretch, Captain T. winning, with Doggett second.
